

Privacy Statement.

Brymor is committed to protecting your personal data and utmost care is taken to respect the privacy of all individuals concerned.

Cookies are used on the website as Google Analytics uses this information to collect standard internet log information and details of visitor patterns. We do this to find out things such as the number of visitors to the various parts of the sites, the path taken through the site and any references to this site from search engines etc. This is useful to us in continually improving the website.

We cannot identify who you are and do not collect personal details from this data. The only piece of information collated is the IP address which helps Google to identify the area of the world your computer is located in. You may delete and block all cookies from this site.

We collect certain basic information about you when you contact us directly and we recognise the importance of keeping that information secure. When collecting and using personal data, our policy is to be transparent about why and how we process personal data. Brymor processes personal data for a number of reasons and the means of collection, lawful basis and retention periods for each purpose may differ. To find out more information about a specific processing activity, please refer to our privacy policy or contact Carmen Morton.

All information that you provide us, or we collect about you is stored on our secure servers and the software systems we use. We understand that this may include personal and confidential information and therefore we have in place a range of suitable physical, electronic and managerial procedures to ensure your information is kept secure.

We continue to commit that no information is shared about you or your company to third party companies without your consent, apart from those third parties we work with whilst operating our core business activities or to fulfil any legal obligation we are required to comply with.
